Go global with your degree in management!

There are no borders when doing business so shouldn't your degree reflect this?

Internationalize your degree with a study abroad that complements your specific major.

"Studying abroad has drastically increased my view of the world, business and marketing most of all. Being able to understand and experience that there are differences in cultures and personality in each country can really help build one's ability to reach consumers of all places. In the US, I already knew what products I liked and bought; walking in a grocery store abroad, I didn't know what to pick. This is where I discovered the strategies foreign companies used to get my colón."

Marketing major, Marcel Mundt, studied abroad on the NCC-in-Costa Rica program during fall 2015.

23 of our 50+ programs abroad offer courses in business

"When I was applying to go abroad, I wanted to study in a country whose first language was not English and an American was somewhat hard to come by. I never expected this experience to truly challenge and change my beliefs on business, politics, relationships, and ethics. Despite physical and language barriers, I developed deep, meaningful relationships with people of all backgrounds."

Haley studied abroad at Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore in Milan, Italy during fall 2015.
